

Sound and action

The strike stays the same. The sound moves in time.

Before contact, with contact, or after contact?
Which visible event supports your answer?

Who chooses the view?

What does the camera help you notice, and what can you no longer choose to watch?

Keep one visible action and its timestamp.
Separate what you see from what you infer.

Critical Role: the cold open

Main screening: 0:00 to 18:51. Notice how a character becomes legible at the table.

What action or arrangement can you point to?
What was described aloud, and what was visible?

Three performance tools

Blocking changes the arrangement. Gesture changes the body. Framing changes the view.

Keep the wide view locked for blocking.
Keep the feet fixed for gesture; freeze the response for framing.

Ten-minute break

We return at 11:05.

Ten full minutes.

Next: the official Hamilton trailer.

Hamilton: one trailer, three views

The same one-minute trailer: with sound, muted, then calling the cuts.

What does a closer view give you?

Which simultaneous action becomes harder to inspect?

Critical Role: a second look

Revisit 7:28 to 8:38, inside the opening we watched earlier.

Name the visible action before interpreting it.
Does the longer opening support a repeated pattern?

Revisit Critical Role at 7:28

A camera choice for a game

Choose what a player can inspect during a moment of performance.

Player-controlled, authored, or hybrid camera?
What is the gain, the cost, and your test?

One World, Two Media

Your 3 to 5 minute video essay compares the same story or world across two media.

Show both versions and speak over both.
Due Thursday September 24, 5 PM Pacific.

Evidence rehearsal and feedback

Rehearse one claim and the evidence you will show from each form.

Which frame, action, or cut supports the claim?
What needs to be found or checked?

Thirty minutes with your team

12:15 to 12:45: work on your actual board for a game involving collaboration.

Which visual choice will your team improve?
Keep the board somewhere everyone can access.

One observation, one question

One term you learned today and where you saw it. One thing you are still unsure of.

Save your notes and check shared board access.
Finish at 12:50.
